Mining News of the Great Southwest

NATIVE COPPER IN SANTA RITA DISTRICT

Chino Copper Company Is Now Largest Producer in the Camp.

Recent developments are proving the famous Santa Rita copper deposits in Grant county, New Mexico, to be among the most extensive and richest in the United States. For over 100 years the Santa Ritas have been known, and were originally worked by the Spaniards. Probably most of the copper in the old church bells of Mexico was mined in Santa Rita.

Native Copper.
In recent years the nearest estate secured a large area of the old mining territory, paying $1,200,000, and in addition to its own workings, it leased to various miners, on the royalty system. Many a miner has in this manner made a handsome stake. Two miners from El Paso, for instance, cleared up over $20,000 on a six months' lease.

The ores thus mined were principally native copper in sheets through the matrix, a silicious material. Carloads shipped to the El Paso smelter ran as high as 50 percent copper.

Generally, the copper ores of the west and southwest are carbonates and sulphides. But Santa Rita, like the great Lake Superior fields, carried native copper.

Chino Copper Company.
The Chino Copper company is the largest operator, at present, in the Santa Ritas, and employs Cyclone drills capable of reaching a depth of 1000 feet. Over 200 holes have been drilled. Each drill hole is bored in a block 500 feet square, the holes being bored at the corners of these squares.

Some of these holes went through great dumps and inroads. Every one of these holes was in copper stained porphyry outcroppings. One hole went through ore for 800 feet. Another hole struck an ore deposit, mostly native copper, 30 feet thick. This was bored about 300 feet from the old Santa Rita shaft, the oldest shaft in the district. It is said that there is blocked out over 6,000,000 tons of ore, running over 24.9 percent copper, which, on a basis of 10 cents a pound, gives a gross value of $20,000,000.

SANTA ROSA, IMPORTANT MINE OVER IN SONORA.

The Santa Rosa mine, in the Arispe district, northern Sonora, 15 miles south of Douglas, Ariz., and seven miles east of Caborca station, on the Nacozari railway, is one of the most important properties of that section of country. While it is not a new discovery, yet recent operations and discoveries place it in the list of new mines.

It is in a limestone and porphyry country. The ore bodies occur in fissure veins, and in places are fully 30 feet wide. The main vertical shaft is down nearly 700 feet, and several hundred feet of drifting has been done. The ore contains gold, silver, copper and zinc. As depth is reached the percentage of zinc decreases, but the copper, gold and silver contents increase. It is estimated that there are several million dollars in sight. Most of the ores are shipped to smelter. The owners are some of the leading men of Douglas, and they are figuring on putting in a plant to treat the ores.

SCIENTIFIC PROSPECTING AND ITS VALUE IN MINING.

The Albrite mine, near Las Vegas, Nev., is considered as a notable example of the result of scientific prospecting, the work having been undertaken and carried out under the supervision of Prof. Robert T. Hill, the eminent geologist, of United States geological fame. The entire proposition is based on the deductions arrived at by the professor from a careful scientific study of the formation, and the results of the work being done are now awaited with interest by mining experts everywhere.

GLOBE SMELTER COMPELED TO CLOSE FOR REPAIRS

Globe, Ariz., Feb. 2.—The Arizona Commercial smelter which was closed down several days because of trouble with the water jacket will be placed in commission before the end of the week, according to general manager Benzie. The engineers who are coming from the east to make the necessary repairs are expected Wednesday evening and Mr. Benzie believes that it will not take more than a day or two for all repairs.

FINE MARBLE IS FOUND CLOSE TO EL PASO

Quarry Being Opened Near Bowie, Ariz.—Fine Building Material.

In the Dos Cabezas mountains, 14 miles from Bowie, Ariz., a station on the Southern Pacific railway, a marble quarry is being opened up by a company, of which David Moffatt, of Denver, and L. C. Phipps, of Pittsburgh, are stockholders. Over $15,000 has already been expended in bridge, railway and other improvements. Heavy traction engines have been received, and the road is being put in condition so that each engine can haul one or more carloads to the tracks, eight miles distant, on each trip.

Forty men are at work, and soon the force will be increased to several hundred.

There is said to be a mountain of marble of quality unexcelled in the United States.

The government sent a geologist to inspect these marbles recently, who made a glowing report on them. It is said that when congress adjourns, the secretary of the building committee, which selects stones and marbles for government buildings, will visit the quarry.

A. N. Elliott, of the International Book company, has some samples recently sent him from this quarry, which are perfectly white and fine grained, covered for a length of over 500 feet, resembling the marbles of Carrara, Italy. The proximity of this marble quarry to El Paso will insure a good market.

A GREAT GOLD MINE IS THE BI-METAL OF MOHAVE.

The Bi-Metal mine of Mohave county, Arizona, is one of the greatest bodies of free milling gold ore on the Pacific coast, having a general width of over 700 feet, while the shoot has been un-where it passes under the great flow of basaltic lava that rises perpendicularly 100 feet above the outcrop of the deposit. To the east of this capping the vein again shows itself as massively as at the point where the works are now established. Drifting on the recent strike of rich ore in this mine shows some of the finest specimen ore ever seen in the country, the gold forming in filigree and massive gold all through the rock.
